Again : Does the present law " make money reasonably obtainable at 6 per cent?" An answer to this will soon be had, should any one doubt the negative, by his undertaking to borrow a few thousands! No, the money is not to be had in any part of the State at 6 per cent. paying real estate, can always borrow from one half to two thirds its value, by a mortgage on his property, (the best of all securities to the capitalist, and certainly the best for the borrower to offer.) Who among us, with good interest paying real estate, or any other kind, or at 6 per cent? The truth is, borrowing money now-adays in North Carolina, at 6 per cent. is unknown; the time has passed—it is obsolete.

As to the second question: "Does the present law operate to the disadvantage of the State?" The affirmative is shown in what precedes. An example is to be found in the fact that, whereas prior to the law passed by the last Legislature, repealing in the particular favor of the N. C. Railroad Company, its own law against usury, and permitting that corporation to borrow money at 8 per cent. The President of that Corporation was only on a footing with other borrowers in the market, and had to pay as high as 12 per cent. As soon as he was relieved from the ban of the usury law, he was able to borrow all he wanted at 8 per cent. interest, and had offers for 3 or 4 times the amount needed Can any thing show more plainly that a similar benefit would follow to other borrowers, if our Legislature would ing with this preferred Corporation?
